BUCK ROGERS COLLECTS A "BLOOD FARE"

Fango got word this morning about a new "Civil War ghost story with a modern twist" called BLOOD FARE, co-starring Gil Gerard from BUCK ROGERS IN THE 25TH CENTURY. A poster and teaser trailer came with the info, and you can see 'em after the jump.

The fourth feature by writer/director J.A. Steel, who also produced with Christian K. Koch, BLOOD FARE features Gerard as Professor Meade, mentor to a young woman named Tyler (Brandi Lynn Anderson). She and her brother Chad (Adrian West) are the descendants of a Civil War general whose spirit—along with those of his enemies—continues the bloody combat on a haunted battlefield. The cast also includes S. Edward Meek, Michelle Wolff, actor/filmmaker Kim Sønderholm, Bridget McManus, Scott Beringer, Brenden Whitney, Alison Trowse, Thomas J. Post, Antonio Lexerot, April Knight and members of the Utah Civil War Association, with whom Steel shot battle re-enactment footage in August; the makeup FX were created by Chris Hanson, whose credits include HELLBOY, UNDERWORLD and the MEN IN BLACK films. You can find out more about BLOOD FARE at its official website and Facebook page, and order limited-edition memorabilia here.
