

Maynard Morrissey's HORROR MOVIE DIARY

Follow me on Twitter:
@MaynardTweet

- Home
- News / Updates
- REVIEWS A - F
- REVIEWS G - L
- REVIEWS M - R
- REVIEWS S - Z
- Contact / More about Maynard Morrissey
- Rating System

Important Links

- Directors A - Z
- Release Years
- Bloody Disgusting
- The Cinema Snob

I Want You To Follow Me!

Join this site with Google Friend Connect

Members (127)

Already a member? Sign in

Watch out... THE LAMB is behind you!!

Join the Horror Blogger Alliance... NOW!!

2011-10-17

Interview with director J.A. STEEL

Got the chance to ask J.A. Steel a few questions. She's the director, writer, editor and producer of "Salvation", "The Third Society", "Denizen" and the upcoming horror movie "Blood Fare".

- 1. How did you and Christian Koch came up with the story for "Blood Fare"? What was your inspiration to do this kind of movie?

I grew up in Pennsylvania so from an early age you're exposed to history, from the old buildings to finding bullets and arrowheads in the garden. My Grandma had an old black and white photo of my cousin who fought in the Civil War in the dining room of her house. We were always remembering our past and how it related to our present. I visited Gettysburg when I was little and got to see (and feel) first hand the sentiment that still resonates to this day back east of "Are you North or South?".

I love history and the concept that the war was fought over States rights was always intriguing – much like the Civil Wars between the City States in Greece. History always repeats itself and when I heard tales of Lincoln's dream before his assassination where he was lying in State with coins on his eyes. Coins on the eyes was a very Greek tradition to pay for passage into the underworld. So the scriptwriter in me filed it away until we had a chance to meet with distributors and make "Blood Fare".

When we were naming characters Christian was like, "Didn't your cousin fight in the civil war?" So we added the personal connection of my family name "Trout" (on my Grandma Steel's side) as the name of the main character. When the opportunity came to go to DC, I actually got to visit his grave in Arlington.

- 2. Which Civil War horror movies have you seen so far and how did you like them?

I have never seen a Civil War Horror movie. During the pitch meetings with the distributors, I was actually recommended not to watch any. They wanted to see what I came up with on my own.

- 3. You produce, direct, write and edit your movies. You're doing the stunts and the fight choreography and you're sometimes even involved in stuff like camera- or music-department. Gee, where do you take the energy from, to do this all?

It's not really "energy", it's passion. I'm compelled to write – whether it's songs or screenplays. I have to balance out the mental with the physical – hence the fights and stunts. You have to have balance in everything.

I also have a great team that when we're in production everyone operates at 200%. Then we take a couple weeks off and move into the next phase of production, post, or pre-production.

- 4. What do you think, how will the average horror-geek/horror-fan react to Blood Fare? Will he love it? Will he hate it?

Maynard Morrissey
MaynardTweet

MaynardTweet Check out my interview with J.A. STEEL, director of the upcoming horror movie "BLOOD FARE" - @bloodfaremovie <http://t.co/ck34zLoA> 15 minutes ago · reply · retweet · favorite

BDisgusting The Thing bombing continues to prove one thing: remaking a movie with a title nobody outside of genre fans are familiar with is idiotic. 14 hours ago · reply · retweet · favorite

MaynardTweet @TheMike31 I've seen and I hated it. Lame, boring, annoying characters - a dumb, German suckfest. 13 hours ago · reply · retweet · favorite

MaynardTweet @BDisgusting

Join the conversation

Hi, I'm Maynard, a weird but nice horror-geek from AUSTRIA (not Australia!) who (a) loves to watch anything horror-related and (b) loves to write about it in lame English.

-Warning: There may be SPOILERS!!!-

Thanx for coming by! Have fun, follow me, leave comments, push the LIKE-buttons - and, if you have any recommendations, screeners, press releases or questions, send me a mail powered by

- January: The Girl Who Loves Horror
- February: I Like Horror Movies
- March: Porkhead's Horror Review Hole
- April: Mondo Bizarro
- May: CineMarvellous!
- June: Full Moon Reviews
- July: Cool Ass Cinema
- August: Big Daddy Horror Reviews
- September:

Archive

- ▼ 2011 (306)
 - October 2011 (25)
 - September 2011 (24)
 - August 2011 (25)
 - July 2011 (29)
 - June 2011 (35)
 - May 2011 (25)
 - April 2011 (42)
 - March 2011 (46)
 - February 2011 (27)
 - January 2011 (28)
- ▶ 2010 (388)
- ▶ 2009 (289)

Subscribe To

Brilliant Blogs!

Italian Film Review

Seven Red Berets / Sette baschi rossi (1969) - Featuring an anti colonial message and some delightful location work there is also plenty of battle action for the more action oriented Italian war movie ...
1 hour ago

Melissa's Imaginarium

New Release Party And Story Time - Well Imaginarians I am just in a celebratin' mood and a hoppin' with the promo. Today I am having a party here and I'm also putting in an appearance over ...
6 hours ago

Sticky Red: A Bodycount

Compendium Definitely, it's very: Absurd (1981) - Absurd (AKA "Rosso Sangue"/ "Horrible") Rating:1/2 Starring: George Eastman, Annie Belle and Charles Borromel Following the success of

Depends on your definition of "horror". If you're into the "Saw" style movies – you'll hate it. If you like Hitchcock with a twist of William Friedkin – "Blood Fare" is for you. We have some blood, we have a story and "Blood Fare" gets you in your head – especially when you're digging for change for the parking meter.

- 5. Imagine you'd get the chance to shoot your #1 dream project with no budget limitations, what would it be and whom would you cast?

I wrote a script awhile back called "Black Tide", an environmentally responsible action/horror film about our world's oceans. My dream cast? Sigourney Weaver, Hugh Jackman, Milla Jovovich, Ted Raimi, Marton Csokas, Clint Eastwood, and of course, Gil Gerard.

Thank you, Ms. Steel!

BLOOD FARE Official
BLOOD FARE Facebook
BLOOD FARE Twitter

f Gefällt mir Bestätigen 5

You might also like:

CURSE OF THE BLUE LIGHTS

BEAR

THE SHOCK LABYRINTH 3D

TWO THOUSAND MANIACS! / 2001 MANIACS

LinkWithin

M e +1 < 1

1 COMMENTS:

Nebular said...

I'm sorry to say that, but I've actually never heard of J.A. Steel, nor have seen any of her movies. I enjoyed the interview though. :)

October 17, 2011 8:01 PM

Post a Comment

Home

Older Post

Subscribe to: Post Comments (Atom)

Total Pageviews

6	1	3	4	3
---	---	---	---	---

Zombies Don't Run
October:
Horror Movie A Day

Project Terrible

---JULY---

- Maynard
- Anthropophagus / Absurd
 - Bloodthirst: Legend Of The Chupacabras
 - House Of Usher
 - Skeleton Key 2: 667 The Neighbor Of The Beast
 - The Worst Horror Movie Ever Made
- Mondo
- Army Of The Dead
 - Blood Surf
 - Bloodthirst 2: Revenge Of The Chupacabras
 - Dungeon Of Harrow
 - Transmutations

--AUGUST/SEPTEMBER--

- Maynard
- Bachelor Party In The Bungalow Of The Damned
 - Beastly Boyz
 - Die-ner (Get it?)
 - The Capture Of Bigfoot
- Wolf Ninja
- Blood Red Moon
 - Double Trouble
 - Kill The Scream Queen
 - Ninja's Creed
 - The Graves
- Michele
- Death Machine
 - Mutants
 - Wrong Turn 3: Left For Dead
 - Zombie Nation
- Mondo
- Beastly
 - Highway To Hell
 - Mummy Maniac
 - Ticked-Off Trannies With Knives
 - Ulli Lommel's Black Dahlia
- Cinema Gonzo
- Horrors Of Spider Island
 - Razortooth
 - Vampegeddon
 - Zone 39

--NOVEMBER--
Coming Soon!